THE COUNCIL.

The Council, the governing body of the College, consists of twenty-four Members, three* of whom, when no vacancy, either by resignation or death, has occurred during the year, go out in rotation annually in July, but are eligible for re-election by the Fellows of the College. All proceedings of the Court of Examiners, the Midwifery and Dental Boards, and the several Committees are reported to the Council for approval and confirmation. The Meetings of the Council are generally held in each month of the year, except in the month of September, and at such other times as the business of the College may require. During the past Collegiate Year there have been fourteen Meetings.

* If in any year one of the three retiring Members be President of the College, he does not go out of office until the succeeding year.

THE COURT OF EXAMINERS.

The Court of Examiners consists of ten Members elected by the Council from the Fellows of the College. The Court superintends the carrying out generally the regulations of the Council relating to the preliminary and professional education of Students, and conducts the professional examinations of Candidates for the Diplomas of Fellow and Member of the College. During the past Collegiate Year the Court has held six Meetings for the Examinations for the Fellowship, and forty-seven Meetings for the Primary and Pass Examinations for the Membership. The following is a statement of the number of Candidates who presented themselves for the Fellowship and Membership respectively, with the results of the several Examinations, viz.:—

BOARD OF EXAMINERS IN DENTAL SURGERY.

The Board consists of six Members elected by the Council for five years, viz. :—three Members of the Court of Examiners of the College, and three other persons skilled in Dental Surgery. The Board conducts the Examination of Candidates for the Diploma in Dental Surgery of the College. During the year ten Candidates have been examined, of whom eight passed to the satisfaction of the Board, and two were referred to their professional studies for a period of six months.

THE MUSEUM.

The Hunterian Collection, which forms the basis, and still a large proportion, of the contents of the present Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, was originally arranged in a building which its Founder, John Hunter, erected for it in 1784, behind his house in Leicester Square.

John Hunter died October 16th, 1793, aged 65. By his will he directed the Museum to be offered in the first instance to the British Government, on such terms as might be considered reasonable, and in case of refusal, to be sold in one lot, either to some foreign state, or as his executors might think proper.

In the year 1799 Parliament voted the sum of £15,000 for the Museum, and an offer of it being made to the Corporation of Surgeons, it was accepted on the terms proposed by Government*.

In 1806 the sum of £15,000 was voted by Parliament in aid of the erection of an edifice for the display and arrangement of the Hunterian Collection; a second grant of £12,500 was subsequently voted, and upwards of £21,000 having been supplied from the funds of the College, the building was completed in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, in which the Museum was opened for the inspection of visitors in the year 1813.

* The following are the Terms and Conditions on which the Hunterian Collection, purchased by Parliament, was delivered to the late Corporation of Surgeons; which Corporation having become dissolved, the Members thereof were re-incorporated by Charter, dated the 22nd day of March, 1800, under the Title of The Royal College of Surgeons in London:—

1st. The Collection shall be open Four Hours in the Forenoon of two days every week for Inspection and Consultation of the Fellows of the College of Physicians, the Members of the Company of Surgeons and Persons properly introduced by them; a Catalogue of the Preparations, and a proper Person to explain it, being at those times always in the Room.

2nd. That one Course of Lectures, not less than twenty-four in number, on Comparative Anatomy and other subjects, illustrated by the Preparations, shall be given every year by some Member of the Company.

3rd. That the Preparations shall be kept in a state of Preservation, and the Collection in as perfect a state as possible, at the Expense of the Corporation of Surgeons, subject to the annual Inspection and Superintendence of the Trustees.

4th. That there shall be a Board of Trustees, to consist of sixteen (increased to seventeen by the Lords of the Treasury in 1856) Members, by virtue of their Public Offices, and of fourteen others, to be appointed, in the first instance, by the Lords of the Treasury, and afterwards to be elected, as Vacancies may happen, by a Majority of the remaining Trustees.

5th. That the Museum shall always be open for the Inspection of all or any of the said Trustees, who are to take care that the Corporation of Surgeons perform their Engagements respecting the said Collection. That a day be appointed for the annual Inspection of the Museum, by the Trustees acting collectively as a Board; and that they are also to have quarterly Meetings, for the transacting of any Business relative to the Museum, and for the filling up of such Vacancies as may happen in the number of the Trustees; and that the Corporation of Surgeons shall engage some Person to officiate as Secretary to the Board upon such occasions, and to issue previous Notice to the Members, in which he is to state particularly whether any Vacancies are to be filled up by new Elections.

In consequence of the large number of additions, this building became too small for the adequate display and arrangement of its contents; and more space being at the same time required for the rapidly increasing Library, the greater portion of the present building was erected, wholly at the expense of the College, in 1835, at a cost of about £40,000, and the Hunterian and Collegiate Collections were re-arranged in what are now termed the Western and Middle Museums, which were opened for the inspection of visitors in 1836.

Further enlargement of the building having become necessary by the continued increase of the Collection, the College, in 1847, purchased the extensive premises of Mr. Alderman Copeland, in Portugal Street, for the sum of £16,000 and in 1852 proceeded to the erection of the Eastern Museum, at the expense of £25,000, Parliament granting £15,000 in aid thereof. The re-arrangement of the specimens was completed, and the additional portion of the building opened to visitors in 1855.

The Hunterian Collection was estimated to consist of 13,682 specimens, distributed under the following heads:—

Physiological Department, or Normal Structures.

Physiological preparations in spirit	3745
Osteological preparations	965
Dry do.	617

Of the additions by which the size and value of the Collection have been so materially increased since it came into the possession of the College, very many have been presented by Fellows and Members of the College, and other persons interested in scientific pursuits. Among the largest contributions from this source have been the Collection, consisting of 847 specimens, presented in 1811 by Sir William Blizard, and a valuable series of Pathological specimens presented in 1851 by Sir Stephen L. Hammick. At the same time the Council of the College have availed themselves of various opportunities as they have occurred to purchase specimens of interest, especially at the dispersion of private anatomical and pathological museums, as that of Sir A. Lever in 1806, of Mr. Joshua Brookes in 1828, of Mr. Heaviside in 1829, Mr. Langstaff in 1835, Mr. South in the same year, Mr. Howship and Mr. Tannton in 1841, Mr. Liston in 1842, Mr. Walker in 1843, and, deserving of especial mention on account of the great number and value of the specimens acquired, that of Sir Astley Cooper in 1843.

The Histological Collection, of which the 215 Hunterian specimens (prepared by Hewson) constitute the nucleus, was chiefly formed by the late Professor Quekett, with considerable additions by purchase from Dr. Tweedy J. Todd, Mr. Nasmyth, and Professor Lenhossek. It now contains upwards of 12,000 specimens, all arranged and catalogued so as to be readily available for reference.

The superintendence of the Museum is confided by the Council of the College to a Committee of its Members, which Committee has held ten meetings during the past year.

A summary of the progress made in the preservation, arrangement, and augmentation of the Collection will be found in the following Report:—

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CONSERVATOR TO THE MUSEUM COMMITTEE.

(Presented July 3d, 1871.)

I. PATHOLOGICAL COLLECTION.

The additions to the Pathological Series, as will be seen by the appended List, rather exceed those of last year in number.

Dr. Thurnam, of the Wilts County Asylum, has recently presented a collection consisting of nearly fifty specimens, many of which are of considerable interest. Only a portion of these, however, appear in the list, as they did not arrive in time for the whole to be remounted and brought before the Committee in a fit state for permanent exhibition in the Museum on the present occasion.

It may be expected that changes in the arrangement of the collections, affording increased space, and more especially changes in the Staff, to be mentioned further on (Sections VII. and VIII.), will be the means of effecting in future a still larger and more systematic annual development of this series than has hitherto been the case.

II. OSTEOLOGICAL COLLECTION.

To facilitate the studies of visitors to the Museum, labels have been placed during the past year on all the more conspicuous and important skeletons in the wall-cases of the Eastern Museum, stating the name of the animal to which they belong. This had become particularly necessary in consequence of the numerous additions to the series since the publication of the last edition of the printed Catalogue in 1853.

One of the principal novelties of the year in this department is the skull of a very large Sturgeon, in which all the cartilaginous portions, constituting in fact the greater part, and which cannot be preserved by any known method in a condition suitable for ready examination, have been carefully modelled in soft wood, and the ossified portions fitted to it in their natural relations. The form of the brain-cavity, and the position, course, and size of the various nerve-apertures excavated through the great central mass of cartilage of which the skull is composed, have been carefully reproduced.

The Hippopotamus, which was born in the Zoological Society's Gardens in February last, and lived but two days, and which excited some interest as being the first of these animals produced in this country, has afforded an exceedingly good skeleton, valuable as showing the condition of development of the bones at that early period of life.

The skeleton of the Horse, which has stood for many years in the Eastern Museum, has been replaced by a finer and more characteristic specimen, being that of the celebrated racer "Orlando," who died at the Royal Paddocks, Bushey Park, December 23, 1868, aged 28, and whose remains were obtained for the Museum, with the gracious permission of Her Majesty the Queen, through the kind intervention of Mr. W. Sudlow Roots, of Kingston, a Fellow of the College.

Mr. Crowther, of Hobart Town, has, as on so many previous occasions, sent several important donations to the Museum during the year, including the skeleton of a fine Sea-Leopard, and several skeletons and fœtuses in spirit of cetaceous animals. These are mentioned here, as the preparation required to place them in the Museum is not, except in a few of the specimens, sufficiently complete to permit them to appear in the appended list of finished preparations.

The art of preparing mounted skeletons is one which has made great advances in recent years. Not only is much more care bestowed than was generally the case in former times, on preserving all the smaller bones, as the sesamoids, hyoids, &c., and in retaining them in their proper relation to the more conspicuous elements of the skeleton, but numerous mechanical arrangements have been invented, by which the various surfaces of the bones can be examined separately, without interfering with the remainder of the skeleton. These have been occasionally adverted to in former Reports, and are again mentioned here, as the Council in March last took occasion, on the recommendation of this Committee, to testify their sense of the zeal and skill of the articulator, Mr. James Flower, in devising and executing so many of these improvements, by a special vote of approbation, accompanied by a gratuity.

III. PHYSIOLOGICAL COLLECTION.

The continuation of the revision of the great Hunterian series of specimens of physiology and comparative anatomy in spirit, occupying the galleries of the Eastern Museum, has been one of my principal occupations during the year. The whole of the division appropriated to the Nervous System and Organs of the Senses, which was formerly in an extremely unsatisfactory condition, owing to the numerous specimens which were uncatalogued or required remounting, has now been put into perfect order. I have taken the opportunity of adding to the series a number of brains of different animals which have been accumulating for several years in store, until this revision should have taken place, and which, together with those already in the collection, form a very instructive and important series.

206 of the old preparations have been remounted during the year, and 119 new ones added; among these are several valuable dissections, illustrating normal human anatomy, including three of the nerves of the head and neck by Mr. Moseley, and some fine preparations of the muscular system, in continuation of the series made in former years by W. Pearson.

IV. TERATOLOGICAL COLLECTION.

It was mentioned in the last Report that the Council had entrusted the formation of a new catalogue of this collection to Mr. Lowne. I can now only report that this gentleman has been steadily at work during the year. 164 of the preparations have been remounted, many having been properly dissected and displayed for the first time, and considerable progress has been made with the catalogue. As, however, much preliminary work and thought were needed, before a classification, upon even an approximately scientific foundation could be devised, some time must still elapse before the completion of Mr. Lowne's undertaking can be looked for.

V. DERMATOLOGICAL COLLECTION.

The foundation of this collection by Mr. Erasmus Wilson, Professor of Dermatology in the College, was described in the last Report, at the date of which Mr. Wilson was still engaged in arranging the preparations in systematic order, and preparing a catalogue of the whole collection. The arrangement was completed last autumn, and the catalogue, containing descriptions of the 513 models, drawings, or specimens of which the series is composed, uniform in size and type with the other Museum Catalogues, was published in October at Mr. Wilson's expense, and presented by him to the College.

VI. COLLECTION OF CALCULI.

The Supplementary Catalogue of this Collection, containing the description and analyses of all the additions to the series since the year 1842, upon which Mr. T. Taylor has been engaged for several years, is now completed and in the printer's hands. The entire Collection has been rearranged during the year in order to give space for all the additional specimens in their proper position in the series.

VII. COLLECTION OF SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS AND APPLIANCES.

In December last the Council resolved, upon the proposal of the President, to establish a Collection of Surgical Instruments and Appliances, both ancient and modern, in connexion with the Museum of the College, and it was referred to the Museum Committee to consider the best mode of carrying out this resolution.

As it was evident that no suitable space was available for this purpose in the Museum itself, it was decided to appropriate to it a portion of the small house adjoining the end of the Eastern Museum, formerly the residence of the Librarian. A communication has been made through the partition-wall, by which a convenient access has been obtained from the stair-case of the east end of the Museum.

It is proposed for the present to fit up one room for the exhibition of Instruments, and designs and specifications for suitable glass cases having been obtained by the Committee and approved by the Council, they are now in the course of construction. Directly the fittings of this room are completed the Collection already possessed by the College, the greater part of which has hitherto been stowed away in drawers, will be arranged in it, together with the additional specimens which have been presented since the circulation of a letter from the President, announcing the intention of the College to undertake the formation and exhibition of such a collection.

The house contains ample space for the future development of this collection, and in the meantime its annexation will prove the means of giving the increase of accommodation which will shortly be needed for the pathological and teratological departments. This will be effected in the following manner:—Nearly the whole of the upper gallery of the Middle Museum is at present occupied by a series of "Natural-History Specimens in Spirit," undissected animals, mostly fishes and reptiles, which are of little interest in their present condition for our Museum, though valuable as materials from which anatomical preparations may be made, as time permits. It is proposed to store these in a manner by which they will be readily accessible for scientific purposes, though not exhibited to ordinary visitors, in some of the upper rooms of the house, and, when they are removed, to occupy the space thus gained in the Museum by the Teratological Series, which is now greatly crowded in the upper gallery of the Western Museum, which it shares with the Pathological Series. The latter may then be expanded so as to occupy the whole of the two galleries of the Western Museum, and will thus admit of additions being made to it for many years to come.

VIII. ASSISTANTS IN THE MUSEUM.

At the end of March Mr. L. J. Moseley retired from the office of Assistant in the Museum, which he had held since 1868, and entered into practice in the country. Although a large portion of his time has been occupied in making preparations for the Court of Examiners, the Museum has also been enriched by many admirable dissections, which will remain as permanent evidence of his skill.

The opportunity of the office becoming vacant has been taken to introduce a modification of the conditions under which it has hitherto been held. Experience in the working of the Museum has for some time shown that the range of subjects embraced by the various Collections united within our building is far too great to permit of any one individual undertaking to keep the whole up to the level of the present state of knowledge in each department, and that an Assistant who may be valuable for his knowledge or his ability in one, will probably not be competent to perform in a satisfactory manner work in other departments. Hence it has frequently been found that the temporary employment of persons who have specially devoted themselves to some particular branch of science, acting under the general guidance and superintendence of the Conservator, has been the most satisfactory method of arranging and cataloguing the various sections of the Museum in their turn. Pathology, especially, cannot be successfully cultivated by any one who has to devote the whole of his time to the business of the Institution, without opportunity of ever seeing living patients or recent post-mortem examinations, and with no greater stimulus to keep up interest in the pursuit than is afforded by the examination of the casual donations which find their way to our Collection. This was felt at the time the present Catalogue of the Pathological Collection was made, when none of the permanent staff were, for the reasons just given, qualified for the task, but fortunately assistance was obtained from one outside the College-walls, whose execution of the work proved that no better method could possibly have been adopted.

As it is undoubtedly of the first importance to this Museum that its Pathological Collection should be kept up in the best manner, and that every specimen sent to the Museum should be examined and described according to the most recent phases of knowledge on the subject, it appeared desirable to have permanently attached to the staff a gentleman devoting himself especially to Surgical Pathology, and whose hours of attendance could be so arranged as not to interfere with Hospital Studies carried on simultaneously, and also some cultivation of the more practical portion of the profession.

Another portion of the Assistant's duties consists of preparing Anatomical specimens for the Court of Examiners or for the Museum; and for this, skilful manipulation and a good knowledge of human anatomy are the principal requisites. As the work of this kind needed, at all events for the present, is scarcely sufficient to occupy the entire time of one person, it has been arranged that a half-day's attendance shall be required from an Assistant in this department, leaving the remainder of his time for any other kind of professional study which he may wish to follow.

Thus the arrangement now adopted is, that instead of employing one Assistant, the whole of whose time is devoted to the Museum, as has lately been the case, there are two Assistants, each of whom will work for a portion of the day only.

In accordance with these changes, Mr. James F. Goodhart and Mr. James Lidderdale have been respectively appointed Pathological and Anatomical Assistants for the ensuing year, and commenced their duties last week.

During a portion of the time through which the office has been vacant, the duties have been efficiently performed by Mr. J. Beswick Perrin, Demonstrator of Anatomy in King's College.

THE LIBRARY.

The formation of a regular Library may be said to have commenced in the year 1801, at which time and in succeeding years presentations and bequests of books, often in considerable numbers, were made to the College; the principal donors being Dr. Baillie, Sir Everard Home, Sir Charles Blieke, the widow of Mr. Sharp, Sir Ludford Harvey, Dr. Fleming, Mr. Cotton, and Mr. Long. The Court of Assistants also directed from time to time the expenditure of small sums of money for the purchase of books, and eventually voted a sum of £100 per annum for this purpose. Sir Charles Blieke, in the year 1816, invested the sum of £300, the proceeds of which sum were to be devoted to the same object. Some of the purchases thus made were considerable, as in the cases of the Libraries of Mr. Pitt, Mr. St. Andre, and Sir Anthony Carlisle, and books of importance were added at the recommendation of the Conservator of the Museum and others. In this way a Library of considerable value was gradually accumulated, but it was only accessible to a limited number of persons. In 1827 active steps were taken to render it more generally useful, and with this object catalogues and extensive lists of desirable acquisitions were ordered to be prepared. Large sums of money were also expended during this and the ensuing two years, amounting in the aggregate to nearly £6000. A Librarian was appointed, and in 1828 the Library, then containing 10,500 volumes, was thrown open to members of the College, and all other persons engaged in the pursuit of natural science were freely admitted. This large collection, thus opened, offered great facilities to the studious. By means of extensive additions, the collection was well-nigh complete in works on Medicine and Surgery, both domestic and foreign, whilst it was also very rich in publications relating to the accessory sciences. The transactions of Academies and Societies, and the collection of periodical publications in general, owing to their completeness, and the difficulty with which access can be obtained to this class of literature elsewhere than in large libraries, formed a valuable feature. The maintenance of the Library from that time to the present has involved a very considerable expenditure of the funds of the College. It has been the object of those to whose care it has been confided to ensure the completeness and excellence of the collection, and great facilities of reference have been provided by the preparation of additional catalogues and indexes of subjects. During the last year there have been added to the Library 407 volumes, comprising 105 new works, and 316 tracts, pamphlets, essays, reports, and theses. The entire collection now contains 33,469 volumes, 13,697 works, and 36,278 tracts, pamphlets, essays, reports, and theses.

The following is a list of the donations that have been presented to the Library during the year 1870-71, viz. :—

2. Describe the process of Respiration under the following heads:—
 - (a) The Mechanism by which the Acts of inspiration and expiration under ordinary circumstances are effected.
 - (b) By what means, and in accordance with what physical laws, is the air within the lungs changed? and what are the changes observed in the expired air?
 - (c) Whence are the various additional components found in the expired air derived?
3. Describe the course and relations of the internal maxillary artery; and give the dissection necessary to expose it. Trace, also, to their distribution its several branches in the order in which they arise.
4. Give an account of the forces by which the systemic circulation is carried on; and of the mechanism of the Heart's action. State also the sources whence that organ derives its nerves, their mode of distribution in its substance, and the way in which they are supposed to influence its action.
5. Describe the Diaphragm:—its attachments, relations on both surfaces, structure, and openings. Also state whence its blood-vessels and nerves are derived, and the mode in which they are distributed.
6. Describe the minute structure and general arrangement of the lacteals, and of the lymphatic vessels and glands. What is the principal difference between absorption by the lymphatics and by the blood-vessels respectively? Also state the general physical laws under which absorption takes place.
